Sessions

1a Russell Stannard, sponsored by the British Council

2a Let's get our students speaking more

Russell has had more than 350,000 visitors to his website www.teachertrainingvideos.com in 2014 so far. In this workshop he will focus on the most popular tools on his website for getting students speaking and developing their fluency. These tools are easy to use, free and can be accessed on PCs, mobiles and tablets. Teachers will have a chance to use these tools and share ideas on the way they can be exploited in the class.

3a Leo Selivan

Not a word was spoken (but many were learned)

Video is often used in the EFL classroom for listening comprehension activities but how can you exploit silent films? This workshop will look at how language can be generated from silent clips and explore a variety of techniques for teaching and recycling vocabulary with online video.

1b Julia Schlam-Salman, David Yellin College

Classroom management in a digital age

Increasingly, schools and classrooms are integrating technology into their learning environments. A need to reevaluate classroom management practice emerges in light of these implementations. In this workshop, we will explore strategies and tools for classroom management in an era of technology based learning. We will consider some of principles underlining well-run classrooms and practice using digital tools which can encourage cooperation, collaboration and compliance.

2b Jane Cohen, Open University

Think mobile! Think more!

Want to get your students speaking and writing more in English, and motivated and excited about their homework? In this hands-on workshop you will learn how to integrate mobile technology, Web 2.0 tools and a few simple thinking routines into your lessons and homework tasks, and engage even the most reluctant learners.

3b Michele Ben

Free to Be…You and Me* in Music, Mime, Movies and More

In this workshop we will explore the infinite possibilities for using the album Free to Be…You and Me in any EFL classroom. You will leave the session with the materials to implement many of the activities we'll experience. Come prepared for fun!
